Triplejump Wellington

At least 40% of all small to medium sized enterprises (SME's) have a critical dependence on a key person for ongoing business and balance sheet solvency. Is your business one of them and do you have Key Person Protection in place? Key Person Protection is a planned response to assist a business to maintain its financial commitments when a key person unexpectedly dies or is seriously incapacitated. It is designed to minimise the likelihood of insolvency and protect the value of the business.

Triplejump consultants are trained in the area of Human Capital Risk and can help business owners identify, quantify and manage the financial risks that will often impact a business and its owners when something serious happens to a key person. For further information, contact Helen Chapman at Triplejump Wellington on (04) 920 1697 or helen.chapman@triplejump.co.nz
